

Why Battle Creek, Michigan?

Food Processing Advantages

- Battle Creek has a significant food industry presence as it's the home and world headquarters for the Kellogg Company. Others with a presence in Battle Creek are Post Foods, Tree House Foods, Prairie Farms Dairy, W.K. Kellogg Institute for Research, to name a few
- Battle Creek is also home to the International Food Protection Training Institute (IFPTI) formerly known as the Global Food Protection Institute, a globally recognized partner with food safety regulators and food processors seeking to improve competencies in food safety
- Battle Creek is also home to Covance, a contract research organization (CRO) providing drug development and animal testing services
- The City of Battle Creek has 30 million gallons of excess water and sewer capacity
- Ample workforce
- Several sites to build on
- 81,900 sq. ft. food grade facility available for lease

